

Guide to Insulin Savings

The price of insulin has tripled in the past 15 years, making it difficult to afford, and even inaccessible for many people with diabetes. Affordability is our top priority. Diathrive provides blood sugar testing supplies at a very low cost. However, we currently cannot provide insulin. So, we created this guide to help. Follow these steps to find out if you qualify for free or reduced-cost insulin.

Disclaimer: Diathrive is not in partnerships or affiliations with Sanofi, Eli Lilly, Novo Nordisk, MannKind, or any of the companies, websites, entities or industries referred to in this document. Diathrive provides this information exclusively as a courtesy to our subscribers. No mentions should be considered as endorsements. Diathrive does not charge any fees for referring clients into the programs outlined below, nor does Diathrive receive compensation from any customer participation.

Step 1: Check the list to find your insulin brand

Sanofi

Admelog
Apidra
Lantus
Soliqua 100/33
Toujeo

Eli Lilly

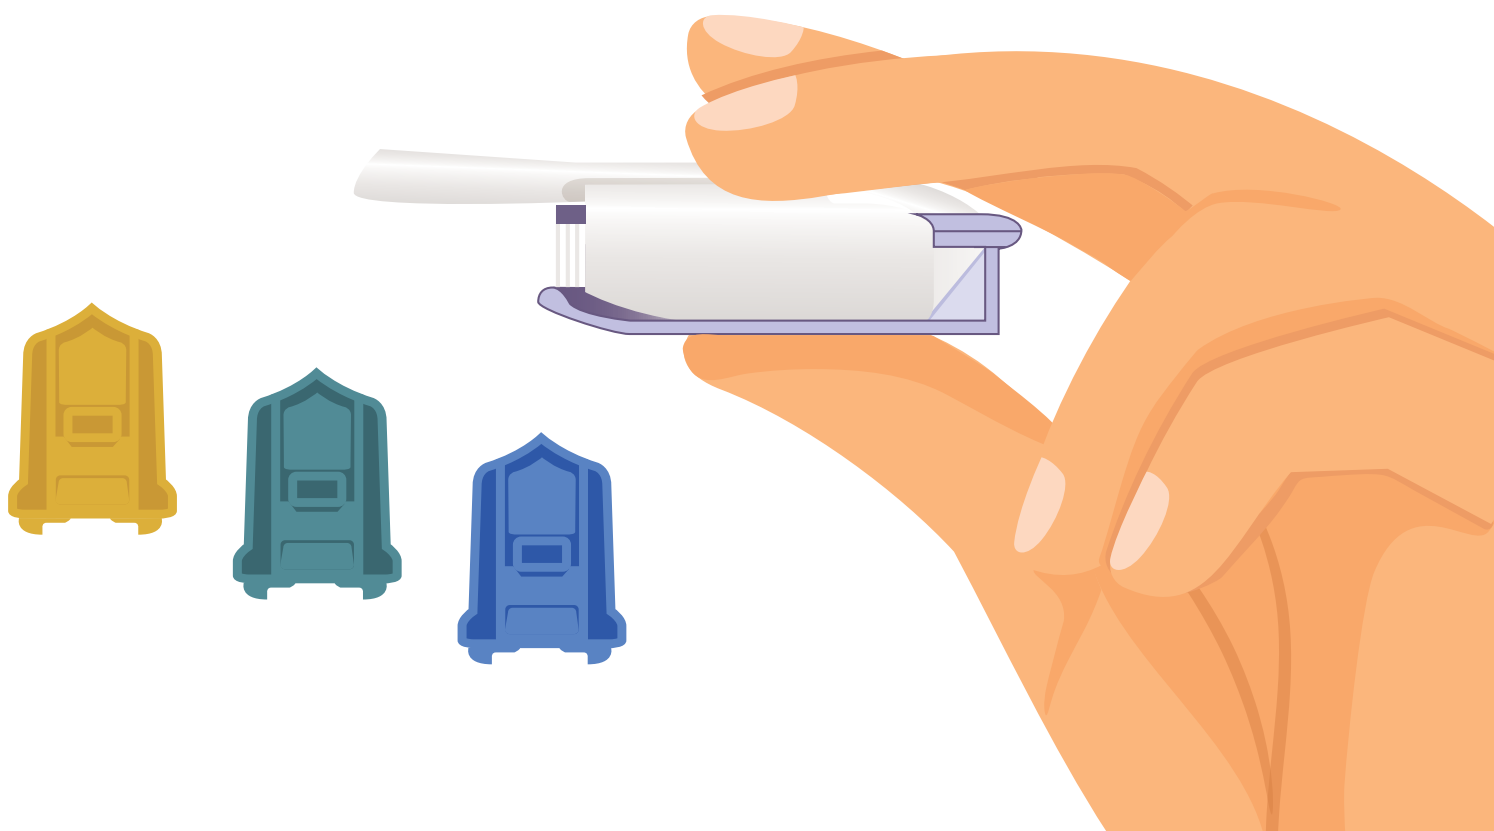

Basaglar
Humalog
Humulin

Novo Nordisk

Fiasp
Tresiba
Levemir
Novolog

MannKind

Afrezza

Step Two: See if you qualify for free insulin

Eligibility:

These special programs are only available to those who qualify (generally those with lower household incomes, US Citizenship/Legal resident, no insurance, and no other healthcare benefits).

Each program has particular qualifications that you can find when you visit the applications below.

Click through to apply

Sanofi

Eli Lilly

Novo Nordisk

Mannkind

(no FREE insulin program available)

Step Three: Manufacturer Discount

Didn't qualify for free insulin? See if you qualify for manufacturer discount programs. With such tight conditions for eligibility for free insulin, many people do not qualify. However, there are options for more people to save on insulin using manufacturers' discount programs.

Eligibility:

These programs are available to those who qualify (generally, people with a valid prescription who submit claims through a high deductible insurance plan).

Click through to apply

Sanofi

- Admelog
- Apidra
- Lantus
- Soliqua 100/33
- Toujeo

Eli Lilly

- Basaglar
- Humalog
- Humulin R U-500

Novo Nordisk

- Fiasp
- Tresiba
- Levemir
- Novolog
- Novolog 70/30

MannKind

- Afrezza

Step Four: Out of Pocket Options

Discount Pharmacy Websites:

Good Rx

Inside Rx

Pharmacy Discount Cards:

They are easy to find, and can usually save at least a few dollars at most pharmacies. Insulin is not well covered by these, but saving a little is better than paying full price. For example, try this one out.

Other Providers:

Walmart Insulin*

Canadian insulin - If you are considering purchasing insulin from Canada, read what the FDA has to say about the legality of importing drugs for personal use.

*Walmart sells older Novolin insulin types at a lower cost. These insulins are an option for anybody who simply cannot afford or access newer insulin, because it is better than no insulin at all. But, this is not the ideal solution as they are more difficult to use. To learn more about the fight against Big Insulin's outrageous prices on modern insulins, go to T1International.

Wrap up

Thank you for reading our Guide to Insulin Savings. Diathrive's mission is to empower people with diabetes with education and affordable testing supplies and other products. Our testing supplies subscription plans start at just $8 per month.

To learn more about our products and services please visit www.Diathrive.com

Start saving today!

Diathrive